

SPECTRA BY COMCAST SPECTACOR PROMOTES MIKE SCANLON TO SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, ARENAS AND STADIUMS

(Philadelphia, PA - June 9, 2016) Spectra by Comcast Spectacor today promoted Mike Scanlon, an industry veteran and a company leader since 1998, to Senior Vice President, Arenas and Stadiums. He was previously Regional VicePresident of Spectra’s New England Region. He will begin his new position on Monday, June 13, and will report directly to Glen Brandeburg, Chief Operating Officer, Spectra Venue Management and Food Services & Hospitality.

“Mike is a tremendous leader with a great history in our company that will serve our clients and our employees very nicely,” said Brandeburg. “He’s extremely well networked and respected, throughout the industry and our company. He brings a phenomenal balance of operational oversight and functional expertise to our field leadership team.”

In his new role, Scanlon will provide enterprise leadership around Spectra’s arena and stadium business. In addition, he will oversee the regions and districts in the Northeast Division.

Scanlon replaces Hank Abate who recently announced he is leaving the company to pursue other interests.

Scanlon joined Comcast Spectacor in 1998 as the General Manager of the Sun National Bank Center (Trenton, NJ). During his time with the company he also held similar positions at the Rose Quarter (Portland, OR), the Chaifetz Arena on the campus of Saint Louis University (St. Louis, MO), and most recently, the Talen Energy Stadium, formerly PPL Park, (Chester, PA).

Scanlon received his Bachelors of Science in Physical Education from Salem State College in 1991, and Masters of Science in Sports Management from Northeastern University in 1993. He has been active with the International Association of Venue Managers (IAVM) including serving as the district one vice president and graduating from IAVM’s School of Facility Management. Scanlon and his wife, Emilia, and their daughter, Allison, and son, Michael, reside in suburban Philadelphia. Scanlon will be based at the company’s flagship facility, the Wells Fargo Center.

“Glen has done a nice job operationally bringing the right level of expertise to support our field leadership team, and I am excited about seeing Mike in his new role overseeing our Arenas and Stadium business,” added Dave Scott, President and CEO, Comcast Spectacor. “Mike is joining a strong slate of Spectra Executives, including Shura Garnett who is best in class when it comes to convention centers, and Charlie Neary and Doug Drewes, who are experts in food and beverage service. When I think about what this team can do working with Dave Butler’s Spectra Ticketing & Fan Engagement team, our opportunities are endless.”
