NEW MANAGEMENT BEGINNING THEIR WORK AT ALERUS CENTER IN GRAND FORKS

GRAND FORKS -- New leadership has taken over at the Alerus Center in Grand Forks from the hands of the city to a private company.

A new director, Anna Roszburg, took the top job and started on Monday.

Spectra Venue Management, the same company that manages the Fargodome, has signed an agreement with the city to manage both the top boss and employees at the venue.

This all comes after the Alerus Center's top bosses were fired last fall.

The commission that oversees the venue searched for months to find a company and replacement for these previous managers.

The complete transition from the city to Spectra Venue Management is expected to be completed by Sunday.
